Oil Search selected for inclusion in the Dow Jones Sustainability Index (DJSI) Australia

20 September 2013

Oil Search's sustainability performance has been recognised by its selection for inclusion in the 2013 Dow Jones Sustainability Index (DJSI) for Australia. The Index is recognised as one of the most prestigious benchmarks for corporate sustainability and represents a significant achievement for Oil Search.

The DJSI is a partnership between the Dow Jones stock market index and RobecoSAM, an international investment company that specialises in sustainability investment. It measures the performance of the world's sustainability leaders and is widely used by investors. Companies are selected for inclusion in the DJSI based on a comprehensive assessment of long-term economic, environmental and social criteria. This includes governance, risk management, climate change, labour practices and stakeholder engagement. Only firms that lead their industries based on this assessment are included in the Index.

The DJSI was first launched in 1999 as a global sustainability index and now also comprises a set of regional and industry sector indices. Companies that are included in the DJSI Indices are selected following a best-in-class approach and are within the world's 10–20% best performing publicly traded companies from a sustainability perspective.

Oil Search is one of only 55 of Australia's ASX 200 listed companies to be included in the Australian index. Being named as a top performer among its peers formally recognises the Company's long-term commitment to advancing and integrating sustainability throughout its operations.

The DJSI acts as a sustainability benchmark, allowing investors and analysts to assess a company's sustainability performance and integrate this into their investment decision-making processes. It also allows for assessment beyond traditional financial factors, recognising that other components such as sustainability are vital to a company's success, risk profile and ability to generate long-term value.

Peter Botten, Oil Search's Managing Director said:

“For Oil Search, inclusion in the DJSI signals credibility in our sustainability performance and a commitment to driving long-term value creation from an investor, analyst and community perspective. It also opens up a new market of investors who only invest in companies with proven sustainability credentials. Oil Search continues to drive performance improvement across our business and this work will ensure we continue to grow our capability and leadership.”
