Highlights

- 1-Page signs contract with Orange Silicon Valley, a subsidiary of Orange SA telecom worldwide

1-Page engages with global telecom market via Orange Silicon Valley

Orange Silicon Valley (OSV), the San Francisco Bay Area office of Orange SA, a global telecoms operator, has signed a contract with 1-Page to use their hiring platform and technology as part of its drive to attract talented Silicon Valley staff.

This move reflects the OSV's mission to source the best and most disruptive technologies and business approaches available in Silicon Valley. As part of Orange, a leader in the telecommunication industry with a global workforce of 168,000 employees and over US$60 Billion in revenues, OSV recognises the need of incumbents in the US$1T+ telecoms market to adopt strategic talent acquisition tools such as 1-Page.

At Orange Silicon Valley, a large and multitasking team of experts in the fields of technology and communication is at work to deliver "disruption and anticipate that the future is closer than we think". Multiple platforms, emergent business models and innovative technologies are the foundation of what the company develops. OSV is growing fast not only in terms of organization, but also as an Investment entity. OSV provides access to funds and other resources, such as mentors, technology and networking, to some of the top start-ups in the United States through their exclusive accelerator program OrangeFab.

OSV has chosen 1-Page to provide the right tools and technology to accomplish the critical mission of engaging and identifying the most talented job candidates that will drive the success of the organization. With 1-Page, Orange Silicon Valley will access a new system of engagement to source unmatched prescriptive data for enhanced decision making on talent.

OSV contributes to and engages with Silicon Valley's ecosystem in a variety of different ways, including partnerships and business developments with companies, start-ups, universities, Co-development with those in the community, and exploration of new technologies and business strategies for Orange worldwide.
