Transfield Services signs new agreement with Woodside

Transfield Services has signed a master services agreement with Woodside to provide multidiscipline implementation services at the Woodside-operated North West Shelf Project offshore facilities.

The new contract is for two years, with two one-year extension options.

The contract's scope incorporates all offshore brownfield projects execution works including electrical and instrumentation, mechanical, inspection, cladding/insulation, blasting and painting, scaffolding, rope access and web decking and other Perth based support services.

The contract is in addition to Transfield Services' existing offshore maintenance work with Woodside.

"Transfield Services has worked with the Woodside-operated North West Shelf Project for more than 20 years. We are very proud of this long-standing relationship and will continue to deliver a high quality service," commented Graeme Hunt, Transfield Services Managing Director and Chief Executive Officer.

"This new contract expands our presence in one of Australia's gas hubs and reflects our proven capability in large-scale asset management in the sector."

Transfield Services is a leading service provider in Australia's oil and gas industry. In addition to Woodside, the Company has contracts with Santos, QGC, Origin Energy, ExxonMobil, Shell and Caltex.

Transfield Services has the capability to provide end-to-end service delivery, from engineering and design, to well drilling and maintenance and brownfield construction services.

This win follows a number of other new contracts recently announced by the Company – click here.
