SELECT HARVESTS ANNOUNCEMENT

7 September 2016

2017 CROP DEVELOPMENT: POLLINATION UPDATE

Select Harvests (ASX: SHV) today provides an update on the outcome of the 2017 almond crop pollination.

During the month of August, approximately 33,000 hives of bees were located throughout 13,000 bearing acres of almond orchards in South Australia, Victoria and New South Wales.

After a review of the pollination, the company confirms that all indicators show a successful outcome has occurred through:

- Strong flowering of the trees
- Good cross over between pollinator and non pollinator varieties
- Good weather conditions
- Normal bee flight hours

Paul Thompson, Managing Director of Select Harvests said, "This years pollination provides a good bud set for the next phase of almond nut development. On the basis of normal growing conditions throughout the rest of the season, we remain confident of delivering a strong 2017 crop, being in excess of 15,000mt."
