HUB24 COMPLETES ACQUISITION OF AGILITY

HUB24 (ASX:HUB, the company) is pleased to announce that it has completed its acquisition of Agility Applications Pty Ltd (Agility) on the terms previously disclosed to the market on 28 November 2016.

The acquisition, which was subject to customary conditions precedent that have now been satisfied, is consistent with HUB24's strategy to pursue significant growth by partnering with like-minded technology providers to develop and offer an end to end suite of solutions across a broader set of wealth management business models.

Agility, a profitable business founded in 2007 by Craig Apps and Paul Biggs, is a specialist provider of application, data exchange and technology products and services to the financial services industry. Customers use Agility to access a suite of business applications, bespoke software development, technology management, hosting and reporting solutions.

HUB24 has developed a non-custody reporting solution that is fully integrated with its investment and superannuation platform. Agility's services will complement HUB24's solution and accelerate enhancements to support stockbrokers, as they increasingly transition into wealth managers.

Additionally, financial advisers using HUB24's investment and superannuation platform will also benefit from the integration of Agility services which will include additional client management and reporting functionality. Andrew Alcock, Managing Director of HUB24 commented "We are very pleased with the level of engagement and support we are receiving from the Agility team regarding the acquisition and are confident that together the two businesses will secure new valuable client opportunities. The addition of Agility to HUB24 will support further growth of our platform and assist us with the ongoing development of our core business of providing superior platform offers to financial planning groups, accountants and stockbrokers and their clients".
