Donaco Awarded Injunction to Freeze Thai Vendor's Shares

Donaco International Limited ("Donaco") announces that the Supreme Court of New South Wales has granted an ex parte interlocutory order in the nature of a Mareva injunction, to freeze the Donaco shares held by the Thai vendors of the Star Vegas casino business.

The defendants in this case are a Thai businessman and his two sons, who are in breach of the sale agreements for the Star Vegas:

1. Somboon Sukcharoenkraisri, who also has a Cambodian passport under the name of Lee Bug Leng;
2. Lee Bug Huy (Cambodian passport name), who also has a Thai passport under the name of Techatut Sukcharoenkraisri (known as "Ham"); and
3. Lee Bug Tong (Cambodian passport name), who also has a Thai passport under the name of Bhuvasith Chairunroj (known as "Qoo").

The order by Justice Stevenson restrains the defendants, by themselves and their servants and agents, from selling, disposing of or otherwise alienating their interest in the share capital of Donaco, until the final resolution and payment of any award of damages in the Singapore arbitration proceedings initiated by Donaco. In those proceedings, Donaco is claiming damages of USD120 million.

The defendants own approximately 148 million shares in Donaco, representing approximately 17.9% of Donaco's issued capital.

The proceedings commenced by Donaco are listed again before the Supreme Court at Sydney on 6 April 2018 for a continuation of the interlocutory order.
