Correction to Goldman Sachs Presentation

Two typographical errors were identified following the release of the Goldman Sachs presentation:

- Heading on page 15 has been updated to clarify that the slide refers to FY18 numbers
- Error in the comparative number for Reloadable Revenue on page 18

The presentation has been corrected and released to the ASX.

Outlook

Adoption of AASB15 - Revenue standard

Adoption of AASB15 - Revenue

AASB15 - Revenue from contracts with customers is effective for EML from 1 July 2018 and applies to all Revenue unless covered by another standard.

The core principle of AASB15 is that an entity should recognise revenue as performance obligations are satisfied.

EMLs sources of revenue are diversified across countries & segments

There is no material impact to revenue generated in our GPR or VANS segments which is earned as transactions occur.

The timing of recognising breakage revenue from our Gift & Incentive segment will be less seasonal, however there will be no material impact on full year results.

Outlook

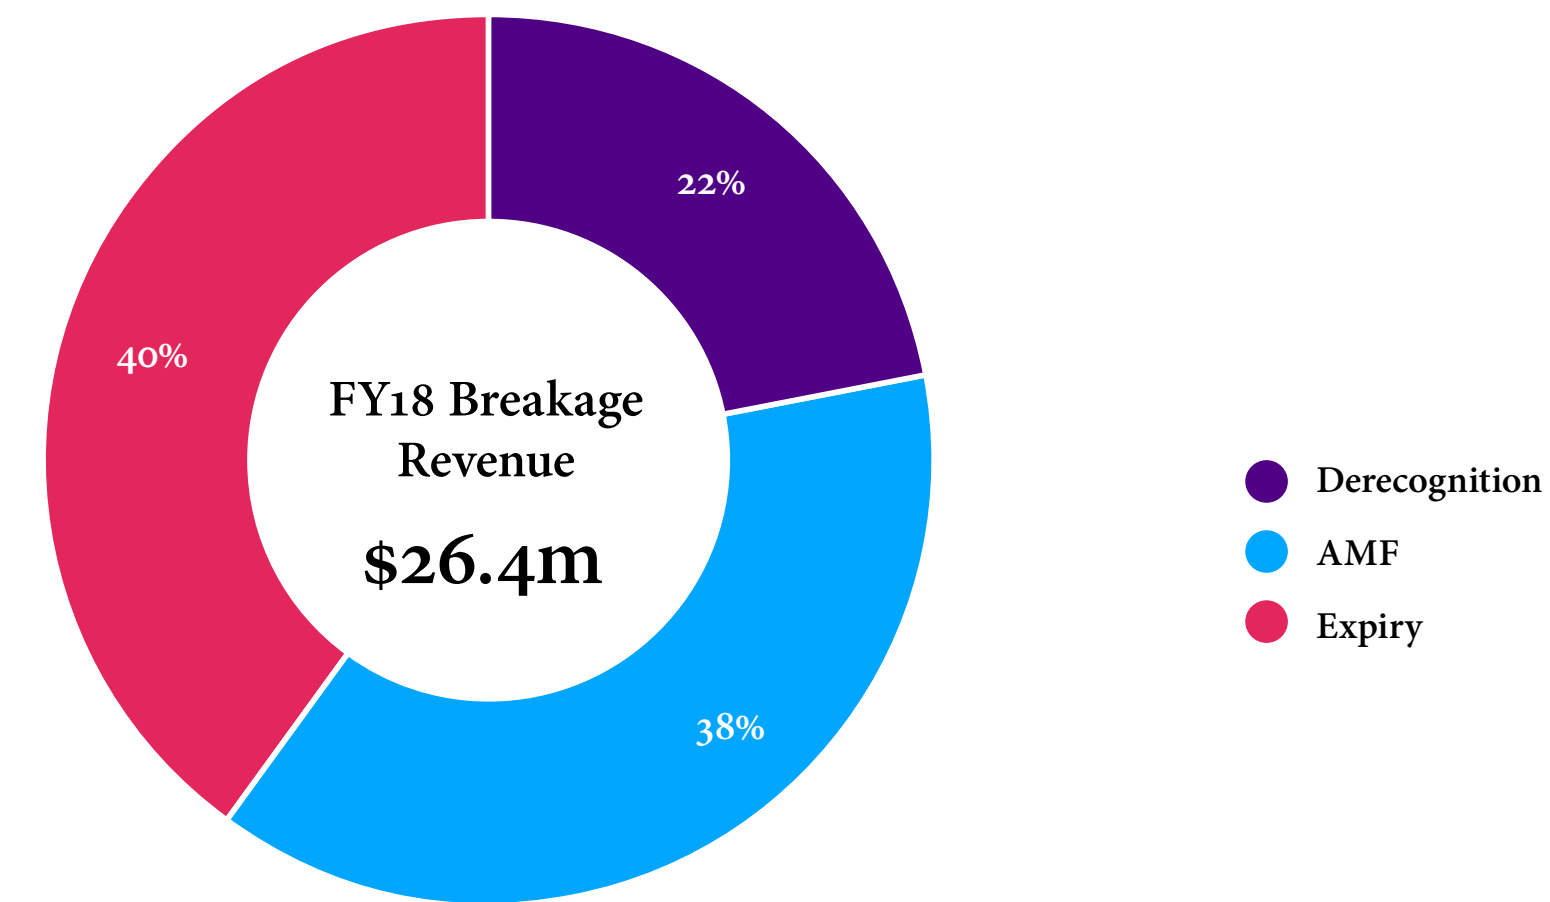

Adoption of AASB15 - Revenue standard

The Group derives 37% of total revenues from breakage ($26.4m)

Breakage income is recognised based on agreed terms and the residual percentage of the initial load amount that is expected to be left on a card upon expiry.

In prior years Revenue has been recognised in the month of load. Recognising revenue as performance conditions are satisfied results in breakage revenue being recognised over approximately three to four months rather than the month of load. This will reduce seasonality between H1 & H2 in our results.

Breakage revenue from Expiry & AMF will now be recognised over three to four months.

DeRecognition is already recognised in this way

Breakage income is generated through three mechanisms:

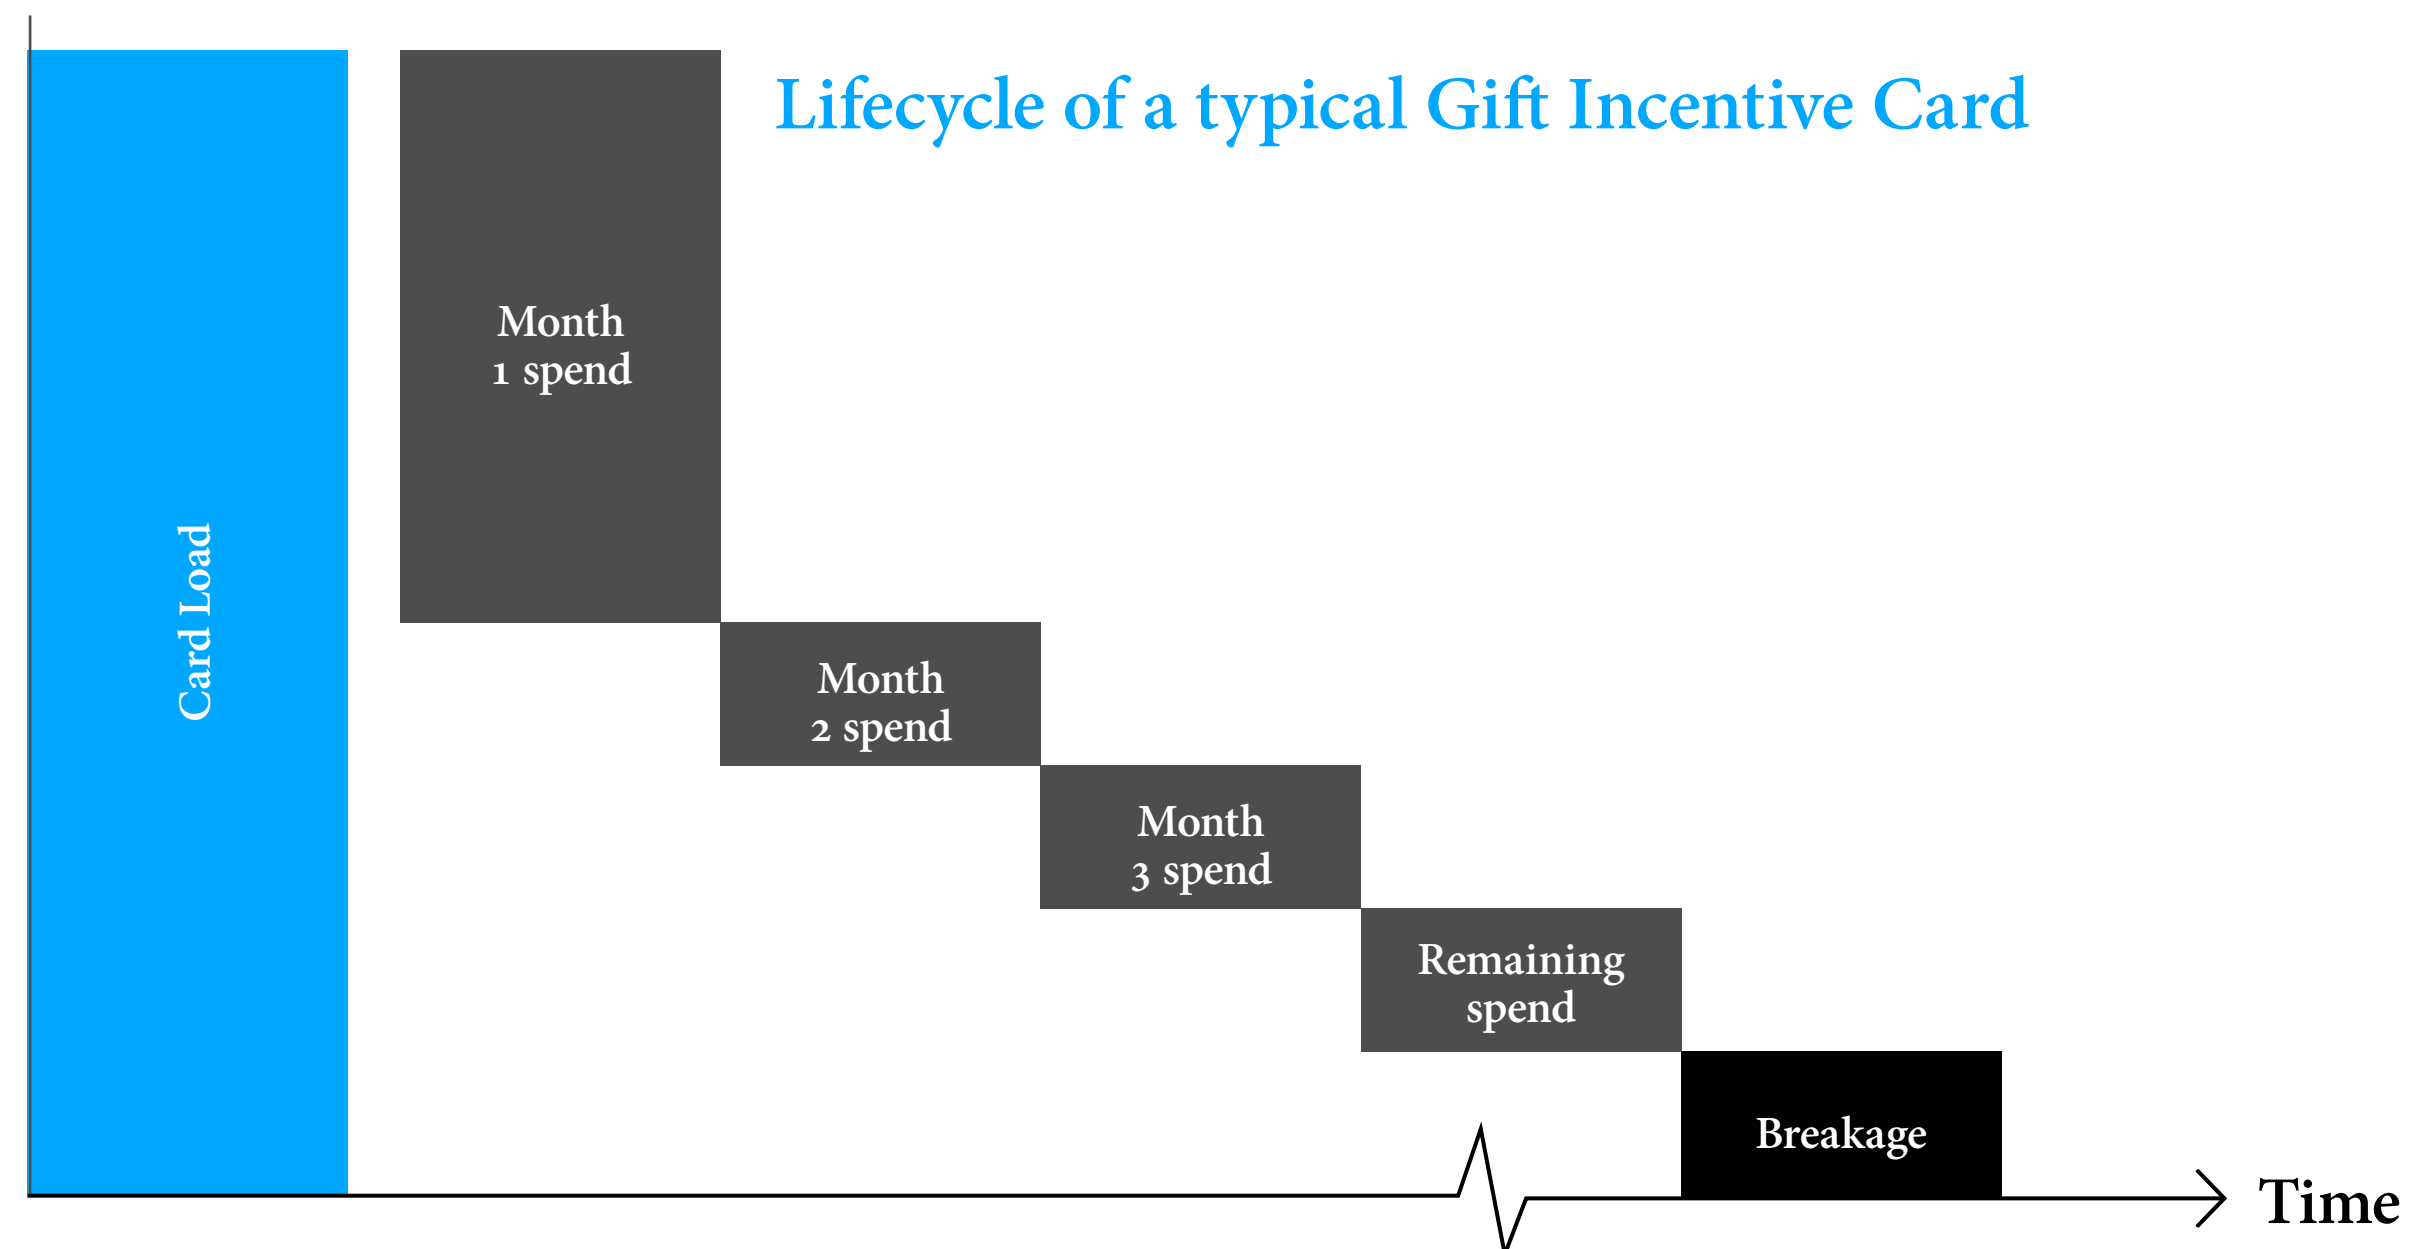

Expiry - Revenue recognised according to the expected residual balance at expiry

Account Management Fees (AMF) - An amount charged per month on inactive accounts

Derecognition - Where cards in certain jurisdictions, or due to contractual agreements, do not have an expiry date, external expert advisors are used to estimate residual value

Outlook

Adoption of AASB15 - Revenue standard

Cardholder behaviour is consistent across the world with approx 75% of funds spent within three months

Breakage income will be recognised in accordance with the same profile as cardholder spend

Previously 41% of total breakage revenue was recognised in October to December, this will now be recognised between October & April

There will be no material impact to full year results

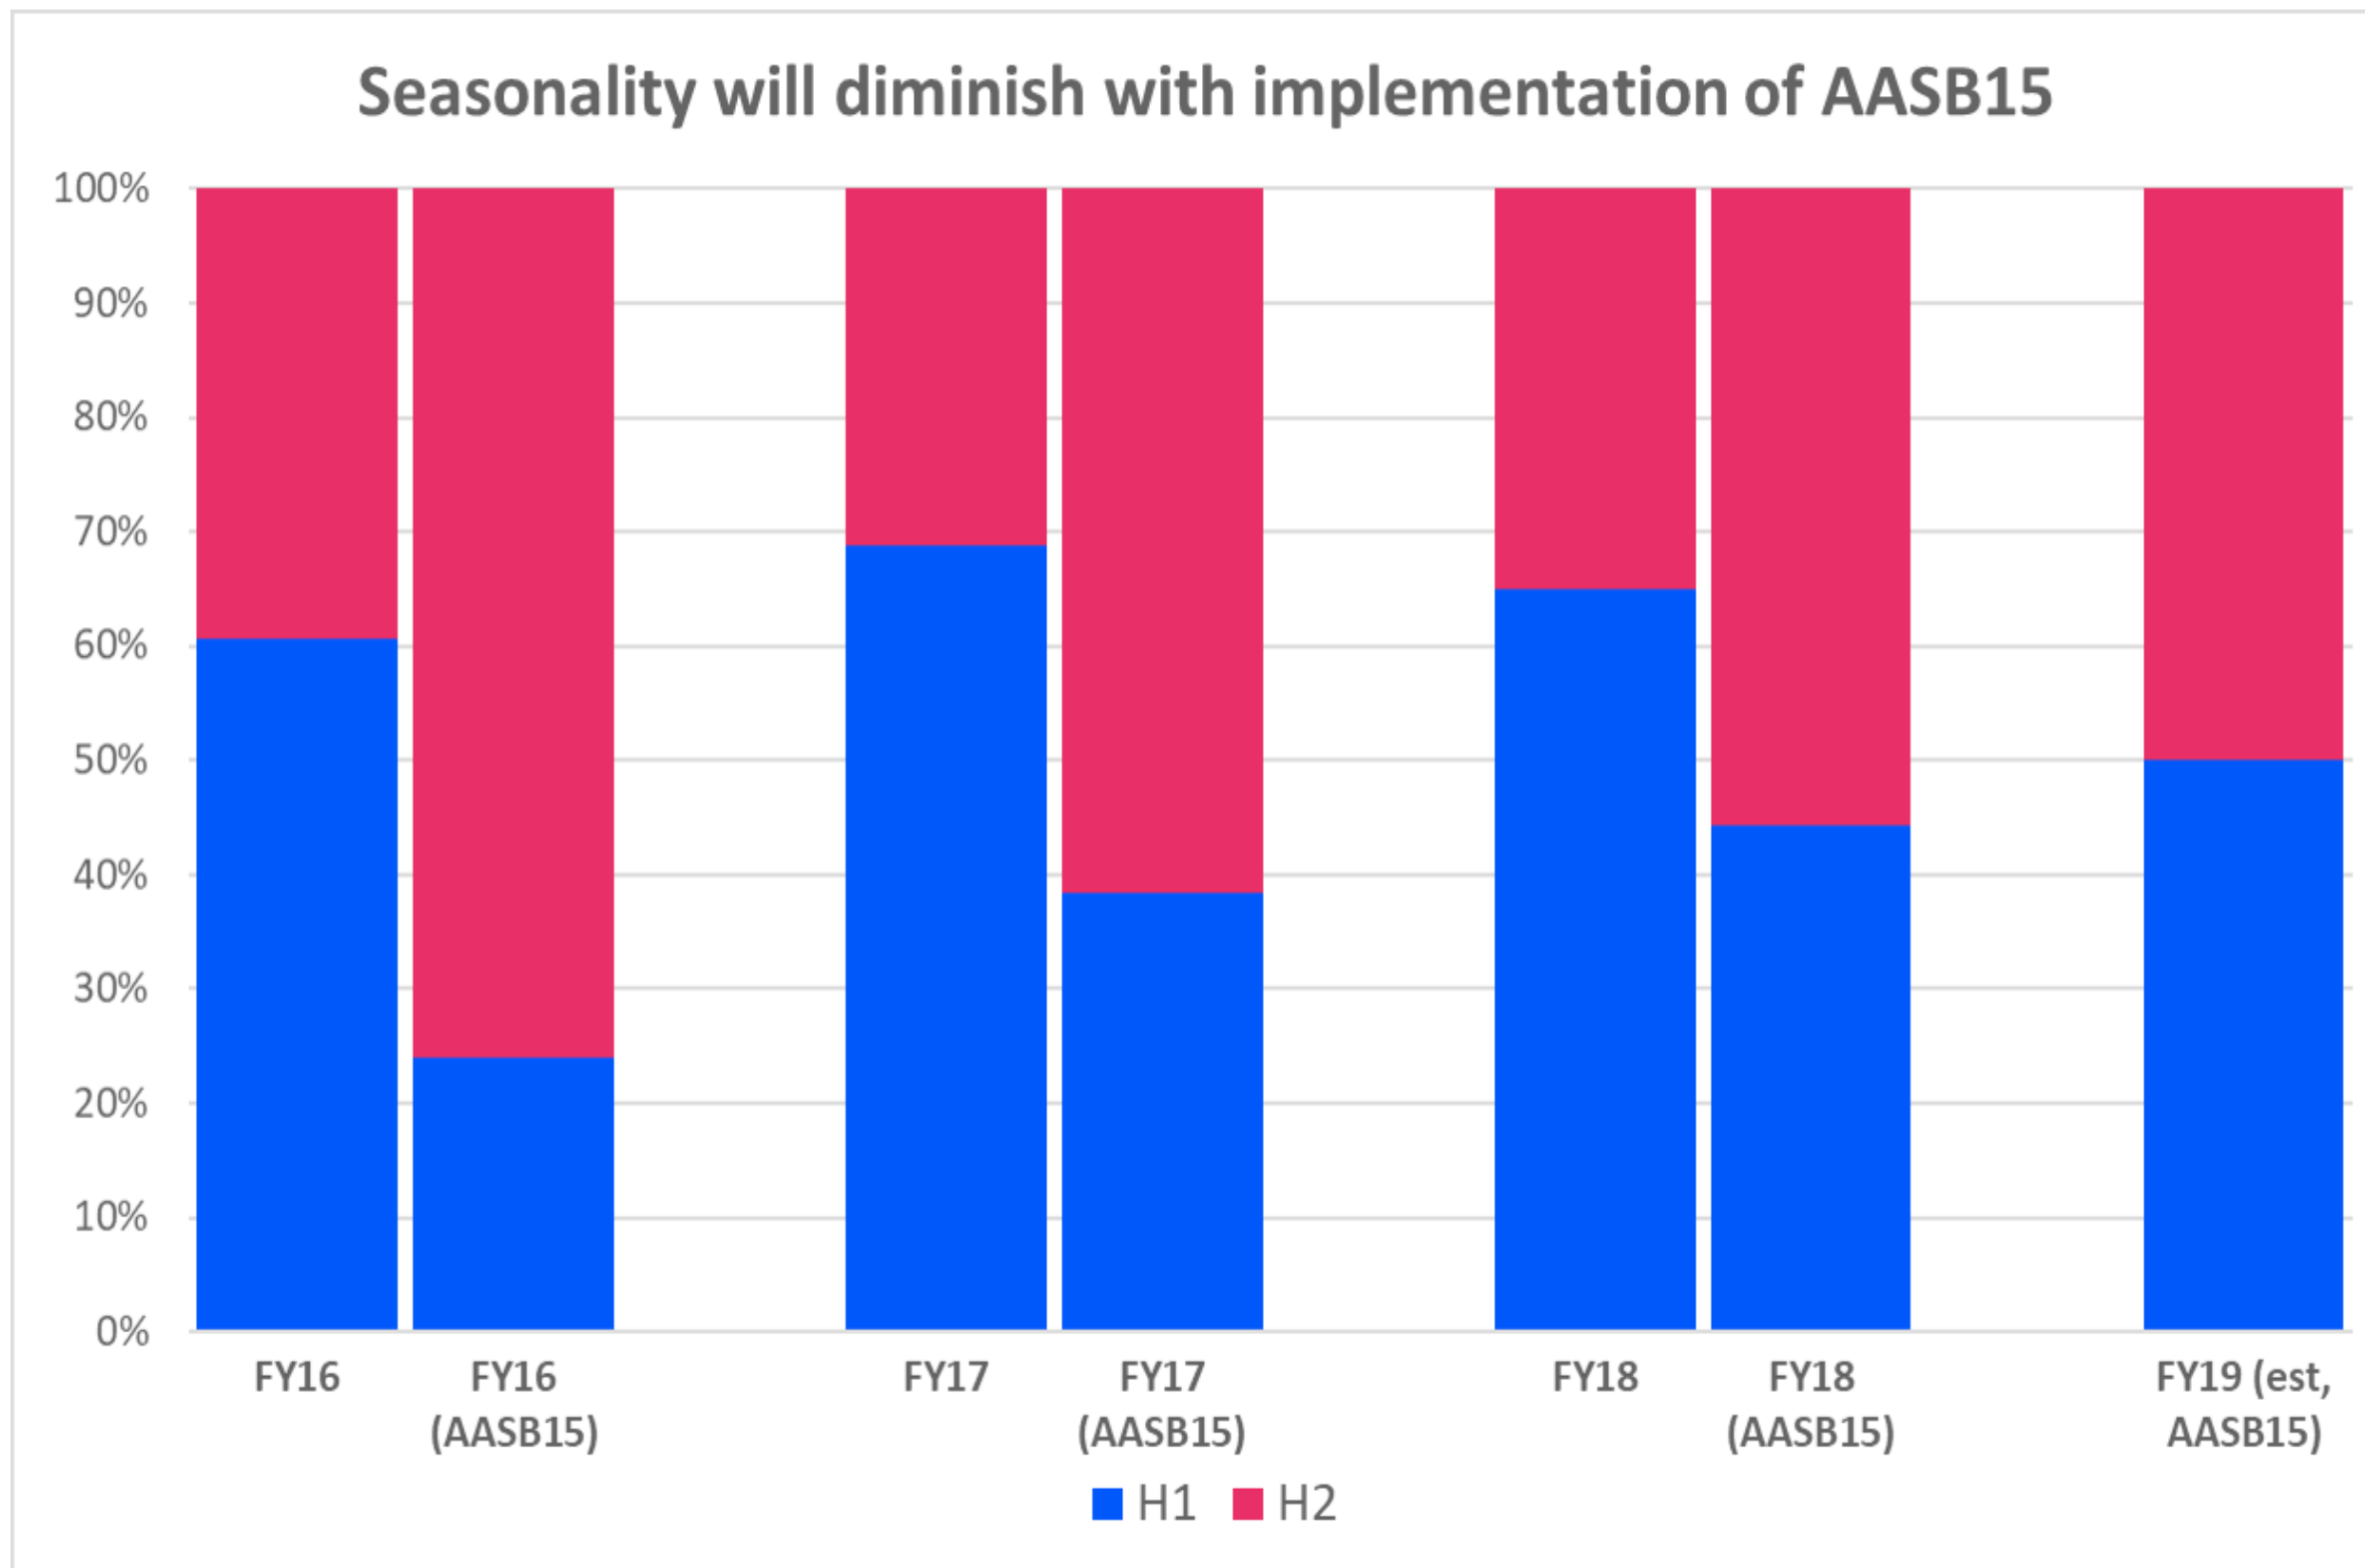

There is no change to the timing of cashflows from breakage

In all mechanisms, EML holds the cash in our segregated accounts from date of load, paying out for settlement or breakage as they fall due

Outlook

Adoption of AASB15 - Revenue standard

Seasonality has been diminishing over the past three years due to the increase in Reloadable products

AASB15 leads to further reduced seasonality between our H1 & H2 reporting with no material impact on the full year results
