The relocation of Australia Mines’ registered office to Queensland reflects the Company’s commitment to developing its 100%-owned Sconi Cobalt-Nickel-Scandium Project, located near Greenvale in North Queensland. The Company also anticipates opening a regional operational office in the Greenvale / Townsville / Charters Towers area during the coming year.

As Australian Mines expects to operate its Perth-based demonstration-scale processing plant over the next two years, producing additional test quantity amounts of battery-grade material to supply SK innovation’s electric vehicle battery manufacturing plants, the Company’s technical team will continue to be based from the Company’s Perth office at least until such time as construction commences at Sconi.
