

TRADING POLICY

Adopted: 2006

Last reviewed: 30 April 2015, 14 February 2019

1. Introduction

This policy concerns trading in securities of the Abacus Property Group (APG) and acquiring or disposing of securities in Abacus unlisted products.

APG directors and employees from time to time may have sensitive commercial information which has not yet been disclosed to the market but which could, if known, materially affect the value of the APG securities traded on the Australian Stock Exchange or the Abacus unlisted product

2. Policy application

This policy applies to all APG Directors, employees, and associates.

APG Directors and employees must inform all associates of the trading restrictions under this policy.

Associate of an APG Director or employee includes:

- their spouse, de facto or partner and their dependent children and any other dependent persons;
- all Investment vehicles or entities where the APG Director, employee, or associate may be a beneficiary or have direct or indirect control (such as trusts, superannuation funds and companies);
- any other entity in which they are a director, secretary or executive officer; and
- any investment manager who acts on behalf of an APG Director, employee or associate.

3. Policy

No director, employee or associate may trade in APG securities or the Abacus unlisted product at any time if they are in possession of unpublished information which, if generally available, might materially affect the price or value of APG securities or the Abacus unlisted product.

Prohibition

It is an offence under section 1043A of the Corporations Act for a person in possession of information that is not generally available but which, if it were generally available, might materially impact the price or value of a financial product to:

- trade in (ie apply for, acquire or dispose of, or enter into an agreement to do any of these things); or
- procure another person to trade in.

It is also an offence to disclose the information to another person with the knowledge that that person could deal in financial products.

Material information

Information having a material effect on the price or value of securities is information that is likely to influence persons who normally invest in securities in deciding whether or not to buy or sell the securities.

Material information could include the following:

- information relating to APG's financial results or the financial results for any relevant Abacus unlisted product;
- changes to financial forecasts;
- a material acquisition, divestment or realisation of assets;
- information relating to a joint venture partner;
- proposed distributions;
- proposed changes in the capital structure; and
- proposed changes in the nature of APG's business or the business of any relevant Abacus unlisted product.

4. APG approach

Insider trading is a serious offence which attracts substantial penalties and could have a damaging impact on investor confidence in the value of APG securities or the value of any relevant Abacus unlisted product.

APG has developed the following approach to ensure that directors and employees do not breach the insider trading provisions:

Code of conduct

The prohibition on dealing in APG securities and Abacus unlisted product if in possession of 'insider information' is set out in the APG Code of Conduct. All directors and employees are provided with a copy of the Code of Conduct on commencement and sign an annual declaration that they comply with it.

Training

Employees and directors are trained on the legal and other compliance requirements relating to their employment or appointment on an annual basis.

Immediate disclosure of material information

In accordance with Listing Rule 3.1, APG immediately announces to the ASX any information that could have a material effect on the price or value of APG securities, subject to the exemptions provided in Listing Rule 3.2.

In accordance with Chapter 6CA of the Corporations Act Abacus immediately announces any information that could have a material effect on the price or value of Abacus unlisted securities that are ED securities subject to the exemptions provided in Chapter 6CA.

Limitation on trading by Directors, employees and associates

The limitations set out below include:

- direct acquisition of APG securities and unlisted products; and
- indirect acquisition where a Director, employee or associate member holds a relevant interest in the APG securities or unlisted products.

These limitations are in addition to the legal prohibitions against insider trading at any time. These trading windows are in place to counter any suspicion of insider trading rather than granting an open window where trading (including trading with knowledge of price sensitive information) can occur. APG may impose a restriction on trading during any period, including one that would otherwise fall within a permitted trading window.

Irrespective of whether or not trading occurs in a trading window, no trading can occur if it involves the use of inside information.

The Chairman does have a limited right to approve trading outside the trading windows outlined below in cases of genuine financial hardship or where the person is required by a court order or enforceable undertaking to transfer or sell the securities. Any request is to be made in writing to the Chairman and approval obtained prior to any trading being carried out.

The Managing Director has corresponding rights of approval if the Chairman is the person seeking approval.

Approval may be given or refused by the Chairman or the Managing Director (as the case may require) in their sole discretion and without reason and their decision is final.

Approval may be withdrawn if new information comes to light or there is a change in circumstances.

If the approval is denied, the person seeking approval must keep that information confidential.

APG securities

To ensure investor confidence, trading in APG securities by Directors, employees and associates is limited to the six week periods commencing on the second trading day after the half-year and full-year results are announced and after the Annual General Meeting.

The exception to this rule is participation in any Distribution Reinvestment Plan or Security Purchase Plan which may be open and is available to all security holders on an equal basis or any employee securities acquisition plan.

In accordance with Listing Rule 3.19, APG advises the ASX when the notifiable interests of a director change.

Margin loans and other secured financial arrangements

Margin loans used to fund the purchase of securities may give the lender the right to require the sale of those securities at a time other than the trading windows provided in paragraph 3.8 above or at a time when the borrower has knowledge of market sensitive information. Such a sale may amount to insider trading.

Given this exposure, Directors, employees and associates are prohibited from holding APG securities which are subject to margin loans or similar funding arrangements unless they have written approval from the Chairman to do so (and the Managing Director has corresponding rights of approval if the Chairman is the person seeking approval).

Holding transactions

If a director, employee or associate enters into a hedging transaction to limit his or her exposure to Abacus securities (whether received under an equity based remuneration scheme or otherwise and whether vested or unvested), this may be interpreted by the market as a lack of confidence in the long term prospects of Abacus and/or as contributing to a misalignment with the interests of security holders.

For those reasons, Directors, employees and associates are prohibited from entering into any transaction to hedge their exposure to Abacus securities.

Unlisted products

To ensure investor confidence, trading in unlisted products by Directors, employees and associates is limited to the following periods:

- closed end funds where the fund is open for a short period only – Directors, employees and associates can acquire securities during the period the offer is open to other investors; and
- open-ended funds – Directors, employees and associates can participate in the offering for the first six weeks from the date of the initial offer document or any supplementary offer document. Directors, employees and associates may only acquire or trade in securities during the six week periods commencing on the second trading day after the half-year and full-year results for the relevant fund are announced.

Directors interests notification

Directors have a legal obligation to:

- notify the market of any trading, whether in company securities or otherwise;
- notify the market of a substantial shareholding (more than 5 per cent) or any change(s) in that shareholding;
- update the company's register of directors interests, which may be minuted at the next board meeting.

Trading policy disclosure

This trading policy must be disclosed to the ASX.

Where a material change is made to this trading policy, the amended policy must be disclosed to the ASX within 5 days of the material changes taking effect.
