Australian Real Estate Snapshot

Outlook and Guidance

- Australian CBD vacancy is essentially unchanged during the half at 8.0% (7.9% FY19), with non-CBD vacancy slightly higher at 9.1%
- Sydney and Melbourne CBDs continue to be the tightest markets with cyclical low CBD office vacancy rates (3.9% and 3.2% respectively)
- Both of these markets are in development phase with 1.56 million sqm of new stock in pipeline in CBDs, nearly half (47%) of this is in Melbourne with a further 25% in Sydney
- Ongoing demand means office and industrial / logistics sector yields continue to tighten, retail remains out of favour
- Investor demand continues to slowly recede from record levels in 2018 but offshore capital continues to look for opportunities given yield discrepancies with other international markets

European Real Estate Snapshot

Outlook and Guidance

- Europe's commercial real estate markets are in relatively good health despite a slowing economy and investment volumes which are slightly below the peak in 2018
- Capital inflows are still robust (with cross border capital accounting for 48% of all European transactions)
- Investor appetite for the office sector continues, accounting for 42% of trading volumes. Apartments (residential) came a surprising second (19%), followed by retail (13%) and industrial sectors (12%), similar to the previous year
- Higher levels of activity recorded in 'non-traditional' sectors such as hotels and seniors housing & care
- The current low-interest rate environment is helping to attract capital offsetting, to some extent, the weaknesses caused by external geopolitical and economic headwinds
- Germany again surpassed the UK in volume terms but both markets continue to take the majority of investment. France also had a strong year with The Netherlands and Spain rounding out the top 5 positions
