Strong growth with momentum building

Aspermont Managing Director, Alex Kent, said:

"In Q4 we announced a new fintech joint venture and look forward to the launch of our first-generation capital raising platform in Q2-22. The strength of our partners and our global investor databases should make the new business highly competitive and we look forward to updating the market on our progress.

Aspermont's revenue and profit growth rates are back above pre-pandemic levels and with the resumption of live events next March, we anticipate growth to overshoot over the next financial year.

Subscription growth rates back over 20%, a continued surge in Data development and a return to growth for our Services business, driven by strong growth in our Content Works division, has all been satisfying and ahead of our internal expectations.

The momentum in all areas underlines both the strength of our core business models and our ability to successfully launch new divisions at speed.

Having managed the impacts of Covid-19 conservatively, particularly with regard to cost management and inward investment, we now have the right business conditions to re-initiate investment programs to deliver significant and sustained organic growth which augers well for our future growth prospects.

At the same time, we remain cognisant of volatile global market conditions and so maintain fiscal discipline in how we deploy profits and free cashflow to ensure that Aspermont remains a self-funded high growth business for many years to come.
