

CLARIFICATION ANNOUNCEMENT

4 January 2022: 3D Metalforge (ASX: 3MF) (“3D Metalforge” or the “Company”), would like to clarify the announcement dated 22 December 2021 titled ‘3MF Technological Progress with AM Materials’. The Company would like to clarify that the customer for which the impeller parts were successfully printed and the financial impact of the print, are not material to the Company. The one-off print is not anticipated to lead to any future contracts. The significance of the announcement is to highlight the availability of new material for the Company to use to print future products. This new material (MAT21) was developed by Hitachi Metals Singapore. The Company clarifies it does not have a formal agreement with Hitachi Metals but are continuing to have discussions with them to actively seek opportunities to apply Hitachi’s powders into the Company’s additive manufacturing production.
