Overlapping class action claim

Further to Nuix's announcements on 22 November 2021 and 29 November 2021, Nuix has become aware of a further overlapping class action claim filed against it in the Supreme Court of Victoria.

As announced on 10 February 2022, Nuix has been notified by ASIC that it has completed the aspects of its investigation relating to Nuix's Prospectus and has determined that it will not take any further action in relation to that matter. ASIC's investigation relating to Nuix's market disclosure in the period since listing is not yet complete.

As with the other two class action claims which have been filed, the Banton Group claim relates to information contained in Nuix's Prospectus and Nuix's disclosure concerning forecast FY21 revenue and alleges that Nuix contravened provisions of the Corporations Act 2001 (Cth), the Australian Securities and Investments Commission Act 2001 (Cth) and the Australian Consumer Law.

This class action claim has been commenced by the Banton Group on behalf of Stella Stefana Bahtiyar on behalf of persons who acquired shares in Nuix in the period between 18 November 2020 and 31 May 2021. The claim does not identify the amount of damages sought. The claim has also named some other parties associated with the initial public offering, including Directors during the relevant period as co-defendants.

Nuix disputes the allegations contained in the claim and will be defending it. There is currently a process being undertaken before the Supreme Court to seek to deal with the competing and overlapping claims made in the two class actions which have been previously served. Nuix anticipates that this claim will also be dealt with as part of that process.

This announcement has been authorised by the Board of Nuix.
