NWL's approach to tax risk management and governance

Tax risk management is an integral part of corporate governance at NWL.

Netwealth's tax risk management and governance processes ensure that

- we comply with all our tax obligations and pay the correct amount in tax
- reasonable care is adopted in relation to the NWL tax affairs in compliance with applicable tax laws in an ethical and responsible manner
- we adopt a conservative approach in relation to our tax strategy
- all tax positions adopted must be at least 'more likely than not' correct under applicable tax law on the basis of all available evidence
- we maintain an open, honest and co-operative approach with the tax authority
- we annually ensure that NWL focuses on and actively mitigates tax risks arising from areas flagged by the Commissioner of Taxation as areas of potential concern.

NWL manages its tax affairs in accordance with NWL's board approved Group Tax Risk Management and Governance Framework. This framework ensures that

- NWL adheres to the key governance principles in relation to tax
- responsibilities and accountabilities for tax administration and decision making are clearly defined
- appropriate controls and review systems are in place to provide confidence that appropriate tax outcomes are being achieved
- provides guidelines on the setting of tax objectives and management of tax risk

The Board is responsible for all taxation affairs of NWL and has delegated responsibility to the Audit Committee and Chief Financial Officer to implement the framework, oversee tax matters, manage tax risks and to keep the Board informed of significant tax matters. NWL's tax framework is reviewed annually to ensure it remains relevant and complies with current tax legislations.

NWL carries out its operations in Australia as a tax consolidated group.

NWL's tax risk appetite and engagement with the Australian Tax Office (ATO)

NWL adopts a conservative approach in relation to its tax strategy and does not sanction or support aggressive tax planning or the adoption of aggressive tax positions. Tax positions adopted are reviewed to ensure they are at least 'more likely than not' correct under applicable tax law on the basis of all available evidence.

NWL will make every endeavour to co-operate in good faith on a collaborative and proactive basis with tax authorities and other regulators. Early engagement with the ATO and external tax advisers are undertaken to fully comply with its tax obligations and operate in a low-risk tax environment.

Income tax expense disclosed in the Annual Report

NWL's Effective Tax Rate (ETR) is calculated as income tax expense divided by net profit before income tax (NPBT). NWL's income tax expense reconciliation is disclosed in Note 6 of the NWL FY2020 and FY2021 Annual Financial Report. NWL's income tax expense disclosed in the Annual Reports is calculated using the applicable corporate income tax rate of 30% to accounting profit effectively adjusted for 'non-temporary' items. The income tax expense is recognised in the income statement except to the extent it relates to items recognised in 'other comprehensive income' or transactions recognised direct to equity.

The income tax expense includes both current and deferred tax. Current tax represents the actual tax payable on profit for the current year. Deferred tax represents the timing differences where amounts recognised as income and expense as per the Australian Accounting Standards do not give rise to an equivalent taxable or deductible amount under the Australian income tax legislation. This can include items such as expenses arising on the recognition of employee leave provision, the accounting treatment for leases under AASB 116, utilisation of tax losses and depreciation.

The following tables provides NWL's ETR over the past three years (from the first year since NWL has become listed on the ASX). In 2019, NWL's ETR was slightly less than the 30% corporate income tax rate, due to utilisation of prior years' tax losses. In 2020, NWL's ETR was slightly higher than the 30% corporate income tax rate due to an amount for non-deductible expenses. In 2021, NWL's ETR was slightly less than the 30% corporate income tax rate due to lower amount of non-deductible expenses as items such as traveling have been reduced.
