A Message from our CEO and Managing Director

Baby Bunting Group Limited is pleased to release our third Modern Slavery Statement that reports on the progress we made in FY22 in assessing and addressing the risk of modern slavery in our operations and supply chain.

We are committed to working to prevent modern slavery. As a purchaser of goods and services, including goods for re-sale in our business, we acknowledge that we have a role to play in seeking to minimise the risks of modern slavery in our operations and supply chain.

As we continue to expand our efforts in this area, we are confident that over time the work we are doing will bring about better business; through our working relationships with our suppliers, confidence in products manufactured free of modern slavery risks, and stronger stakeholder support.

During the 2022 financial year, our focus has been to build awareness of modern slavery risks through broader training for our team as well as increasing the extent of our suppliers and their tier-1 factories that have been assessed through our ethical sourcing process. We will continue to work with our network of suppliers to expand our engagement as we work with our suppliers to reduce the risk of modern slavery.

The last two years have seen us introduce our ethical sourcing framework and commence our engagement with our suppliers. In the year ahead, we want to continue to expand our engagement with our suppliers, including our suppliers of goods and services beyond our goods for re-sale.

You can read more about our assessment of the risks of modern slavery in our operations and supply chain, the steps we are taking to manage for those risks and how we measure the effectiveness of those actions in this Statement.

About this statement

This statement, pursuant to the Modern Slavery Act 2018 (Cth), describes the risks of modern slavery in the operations and supply chains of Baby Bunting and includes information about actions taken to address those risks for the financial year ended 26 June 2022.

This is a consolidated statement for Baby Bunting Group Limited (ABN 58 128 533 693), an ASX-listed entity and parent of the Baby Bunting Group, and its wholly owned subsidiary, Baby Bunting Pty Ltd (ABN 43 128 546 154), the entity that operates Baby Bunting's Australian business. While not a reporting entity, this statement also considers Baby Bunting NZ Limited (NZBN 9429049797633), the entity that conducts Baby Bunting's operations in New Zealand¹.

Modern slavery includes trafficking in persons, slavery, servitude, forced marriage, forced labour, debt bondage, deceptive recruitment for labour or services, and the worst forms of child labour. Modern slavery has severe consequences for its victims and often disproportionately impacts women and girls. Minimising the risk of modern slavery in its supply chains and, in particular, ensuring that women and girls can exercise their own choices free from the undue influence that arises in modern slavery is a critical focus for Baby Bunting.

Baby Bunting has several processes intended to help it assess modern slavery risks in its supply chains. Baby Bunting seeks to work with its suppliers to address those risks and to seek improvement in the labour, social and environmental aspects of its supply chains. Baby Bunting has also designed mandatory training for all staff to raise awareness of the risks of modern slavery in Baby Bunting's operations.

Baby Bunting continues to focus on further developing and enhancing its ethical sourcing practices to reduce Baby Bunting's exposure to modern slavery risks, as well as seeking to work with suppliers to provide appropriate remediation of modern slavery risks in the supply chain.

Baby Bunting in Australia and New Zealand

Baby Bunting Pty Ltd conducts Baby Bunting's operations in Australia. Baby Bunting NZ Limited, a wholly owned subsidiary of Baby Bunting Group Limited, was established in late 2021 to conduct Baby Bunting's operations in New Zealand.

Baby Bunting's operations in Australia primarily source goods for re-sale across its Australian and New Zealand operations.

The Merchandise and Product Compliance Departments, which operate from Baby Bunting's Store Support Centre in Dandenong South, Victoria, are primarily responsible for purchasing products for re-sale in Baby Bunting's Australian and New Zealand operations.

Baby Bunting's team

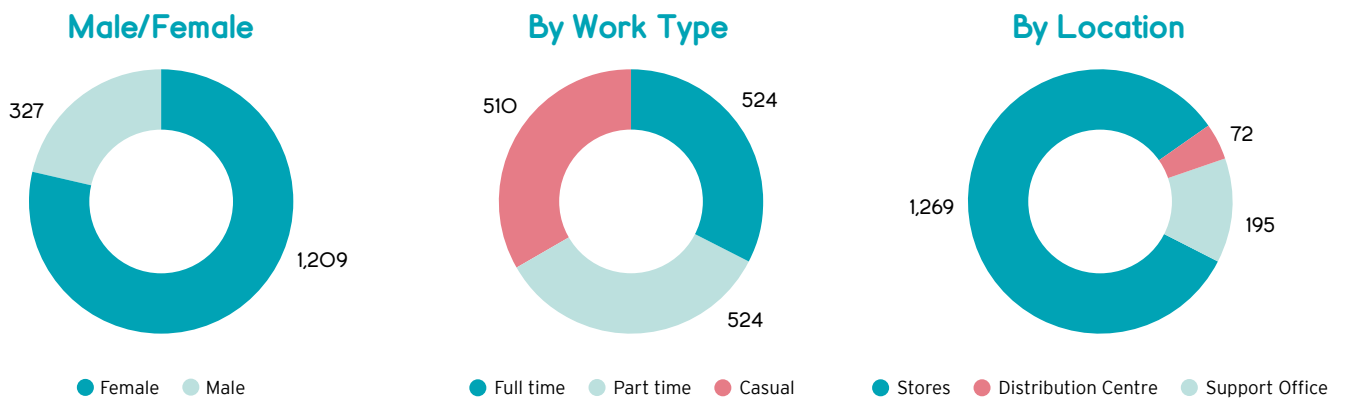

Baby Bunting employs more than 1,530 team members in Australia, with the majority employed across Baby Bunting's store network. The other employees are located at Baby Bunting's Store Support Centre and Distribution Centre, at Dandenong South in Victoria.

Baby Bunting engages a small number of contractors, primarily for short-term or ad hoc roles in the Distribution Centre. Contractors are also engaged for specific project or specialist roles in the Store Support Centre from time to time.

In advance of Baby Bunting's New Zealand store operations commencing, Baby Bunting has employed team members for its first store in Auckland, New Zealand and a small number of team members to work in the Baby Bunting's New Zealand Distribution Centre and Support Centre which is also located in Auckland.

Modern Slavery Statement 2022

Further information about Baby Bunting's business and operations, including its corporate governance arrangements, are available at babybunting.com.au/investor

In addition to the team members employed directly, Baby Bunting engages around 60 labour hire staff to assist in the Australian Distribution Centre.

Of the team members in Australia, the terms of employment of around 1,270 are regulated by Baby Bunting's Retail Enterprise Agreement with around 70 team members covered by the Baby Bunting DC Enterprise Agreement.

Products for re-sale

Products for re-sale are among Baby Bunting's most significant purchases (other significant expenses include salaries and wages and rent paid to landlords for Baby Bunting stores and its distribution centres).

Baby Bunting's principal product categories include prams, cots and nursery furniture, car safety, toys, babywear, feeding, nappies, manchester and associated accessories. Baby Bunting also provides services, including car seat installation and hire services.

There are over 7,000 unique products or stock keeping units ("SKUs") sold by Baby Bunting.

Baby Bunting sells national branded products, being products purchased from brand owners either directly or their distribution agents.

Other purchases of goods and services

Baby Bunting also procures a diverse range of goods and services in connection with its business operations at its retail stores, Distribution Centre and Store Support Centre including office supplies (IT equipment, stationery and furniture), cleaning services (retail stores and Store Support Centre and waste disposal services), store development services (store fit out) and other services (marketing, consultancy and professional services) as well as electricity and water supplies.

Modern slavery risks in Baby Bunting's supply chains and operations

Modern slavery

The term modern slavery is used to describe situations where coercion, threats or deception are used to exploit victims and undermine or deprive them of their freedom.

Modern slavery is only used to describe serious exploitation. It does not include practices like substandard working conditions or underpayment of workers. However, these practices are also illegal and harmful and may be present in some situations of modern slavery. These practices may also escalate into modern slavery if not addressed.

Baby Bunting understands it has a responsibility to respect human rights in its operations and in its supply chains. This responsibility includes taking action to prevent, mitigate and, where appropriate, remedy modern slavery in its operations and supply chains.

Types of modern slavery

Trafficking in persons	describes the recruitment, harbouring and movement of a person for exploitation through modern slavery
Slavery	describes situations where the offender exercises powers of ownership over the victim, including the power to make a person an object of purchase and use their labour in an unrestricted way
Servitude	describes situations where the victim's personal freedom is significantly restricted and they are not free to stop working or leave their place of work
Forced labour	describes situations where the victim is either not free to stop working or not free to leave their place of work
Forced marriage	describes situations where coercion, threats or deception are used to make a victim marry or where the victim does not understand or is incapable of understanding the nature and effect of the marriage ceremony ¹
Debt bondage	describes situations where the victim's services are pledged as security for a debt and the debt is manifestly excessive or the victim's services are not applied to liquidate the debt or the length and nature of the services are not limited and defined
The worst forms of child labour	describes situations where children are: (i) exploited through slavery or similar practices, including for sexual exploitation; (ii) engaged in hazardous work which may harm their health, safety or morals; or (iii) used to produce or traffic drugs. The worst forms of child labour can occur in a variety of contexts and industries. This may include orphanage trafficking and slavery in residential care institutions, as well as child labour in factories and manufacturing sites, mining and agriculture
Deceptive recruiting for labour or services	describes situations where the victim is deceived about whether they will be exploited through a type of modern slavery

1. Forced marriage need only be reported for the purpose of the Modern Slavery Act, in situations where an entity's activities or the activities of entities in the supply chain may cause or contribute to forced marriage.

Modern slavery risks in Baby Bunting's operations

Baby Bunting's operations are primarily in Australia, noting that store operations will commence shortly in New Zealand.

Baby Bunting directly employs most of the people engaged in its operations in Australia (and New Zealand), encompassing its store operations around Australia (and New Zealand) and its operations at the Store Support Centre and Distribution Centre in Dandenong South, Victoria. Individual employment agreements are used for this purpose, which incorporate the terms of applicable modern awards or enterprise agreements, where required.

The standards, obligations and worker protections required by Australian (and New Zealand) labour laws result in a relatively lower risk of modern slavery within our store, Distribution Centre and Store Support Centre operations.

Specialist contractors are also engaged for specific project or short-term specialist roles in the Store Support Centre from time to time. For these engagements, Baby Bunting and the individual contractor negotiate particular contractor agreements. The nature of these engagements and the relative bargaining power of the entities involved means there is a relatively lower risk of modern slavery for these arrangements.

Baby Bunting engages a small number of contractors, primarily for short-term or ad hoc roles, in the Distribution Centre. These contractors are made available to Baby Bunting via arrangements with labour hire firms.

While the numbers vary, generally around 60 roles in the Distribution Centre are performed by contractors provided via labour hire firms. Where we have entered into new agreements for the supply of contract labour, the terms of those agreements require the labour hire firm to confirm its compliance with practices to reduce the risk of modern slavery associated with its operations.

While Baby Bunting considers that the risk of modern slavery associated with this arrangement is very low, as a general principle, use of third-party labour providers or arrangements that involve the higher prevalence of migrant workers may give rise to an elevated risk of modern slavery.

Goods (not for re-sale) and services used in Baby Bunting's operations, include (listed in the order presenting the greatest to the lowest risk of modern slavery):

- labour hire
- logistics (shipping, road/rail transport)
- uniform supply
- cleaning services – stores/cleaning services – distribution centre
- other servicing contracts (predominantly store-based such as pest control, fire services)
- stationery and other office consumables
- software services
- advertising services and other professional advisory services

Modern slavery risks in Baby Bunting's supply chains

As a retailer, goods for re-sale are a key element of Baby Bunting's operations.

As the supply chains associated with products Baby Bunting sells relate to manufacturing and extend through various geographic locations, there is the potential for modern slavery risks to be present in these supply chains. In other words, Baby Bunting's supply chains may be directly linked to modern slavery practices.

Baby Bunting considers that modern slavery risks are likely to exist in its supply chains for the supply of goods for re-sale as a large part of those supply chains are based in, or originate from, countries in South-East Asia and China. As a result of the geographical location of these parts of the supply chain and the manufacturing work undertaken, the existence of modern slavery risks is elevated.

Country risk ratings are one aspect that is considered when assessing the risk of modern slavery in supply chains. A key source of country risk ratings is obtained via the Sedex platform used in our risk assessment processes. (The Sedex platform is described further below at "Ethical Sourcing Procedures").

In addition, Baby Bunting's view about whether its supply chains may be directly linked to modern slavery practices has been formed having regard to risk assessments that are undertaken in respect of Baby Bunting's suppliers and their tier-1 factories. Based on that information, particular modern slavery risks that may be the most significant in those parts of the supply chain are:

- forced labour;
- the worst forms of child labour.

Baby Bunting's investigations and risk assessments in relation to its supply chains currently cover a large number of its suppliers of goods for re-sale and their tier-1 factories. However, modern slavery risks are likely to exist in other parts of the supply chain, including suppliers of raw materials (for example, plastics, steel, rubber, fabrics) to those tier-1 factories. To date, Baby Bunting has had limited engagement with these parts of the supply chain providing raw materials to factories that produce goods for re-sale. As such the extent and degree of modern slavery risks in those parts of the supply chain are currently unknown, but may be higher than other parts of the supply chain. As set out further below, Baby Bunting has commenced a process of seeking to understand the ethical sourcing practices of suppliers to certain tier-1 factories (ie tier-2 suppliers).

Tier-1 factories are manufacturing sites where:

- preparation, cutting, shaping, painting/spraying, and moulding of key components takes place; or
- sites where key components or the entire product assembly and finishing process, including packaging for transport, takes place.

Baby Bunting's approach to modern slavery risks in our operations and supply chains

Ethical Sourcing Code

Baby Bunting has established an Ethical Sourcing Code that sets out the minimum standards expected of Baby Bunting's suppliers in areas of labour, environment, and governance matters. If suppliers are unable to demonstrate a commitment to comply with Baby Bunting's Ethical Sourcing Code, Baby Bunting may choose to cease trading with that supplier.

Baby Bunting's core values, which include being passionate, being considerate and being honest, are standards of behaviour that are fundamental to being who we are at Baby Bunting. Baby Bunting seeks to act with integrity and to use good judgement. We want all our team members to think about how our actions impact others.

Baby Bunting provides products, services and advice to parents and parents-to-be and their families. We rely on their trust, as well as the trust of the communities in which we operate, our investors and other stakeholders. Our suppliers play a critical role in helping Baby Bunting to meet our standards of behaviour and our values. Our mutual success depends on building and maintaining trust in the way each of us conducts our business.

The minimum requirements stated in the Code are:

- being committed to the health and safety of our team;
- being committed to acting legally and ethically;
- being committed to respecting labour and human rights;
- being committed to communicating openly and honestly;
- being committed to environmentally sustainable practices.

Among other things, these requirements establish minimum standards for our suppliers that require a commitment to:

- providing a safe and healthy working environment and taking all practical and reasonable measures to eliminate workplace injuries and illness;
- complying with all applicable laws and regulations and not being involved in bribery or corruption in any form;
- maintaining policies and practices to allow violations, misconduct or grievances to be reported by workers and addressed without fear of retaliation;
- ensuring all work is freely chosen without the use of forced or compulsory labour and with a zero-tolerance approach to the use of illegal child labour and respecting workers' rights to lawfully and peacefully form or join trade unions of their choosing and to bargain collectively.

Ethical Sourcing Procedures

Baby Bunting has also developed Ethical Sourcing Procedures, to ensure that Baby Bunting’s ethical sourcing expectations are met. Administration of the Ethical Sourcing Procedures is undertaken by members of Baby Bunting’s ethical sourcing team who work with, but are separate from, Baby Bunting’s merchandise team.

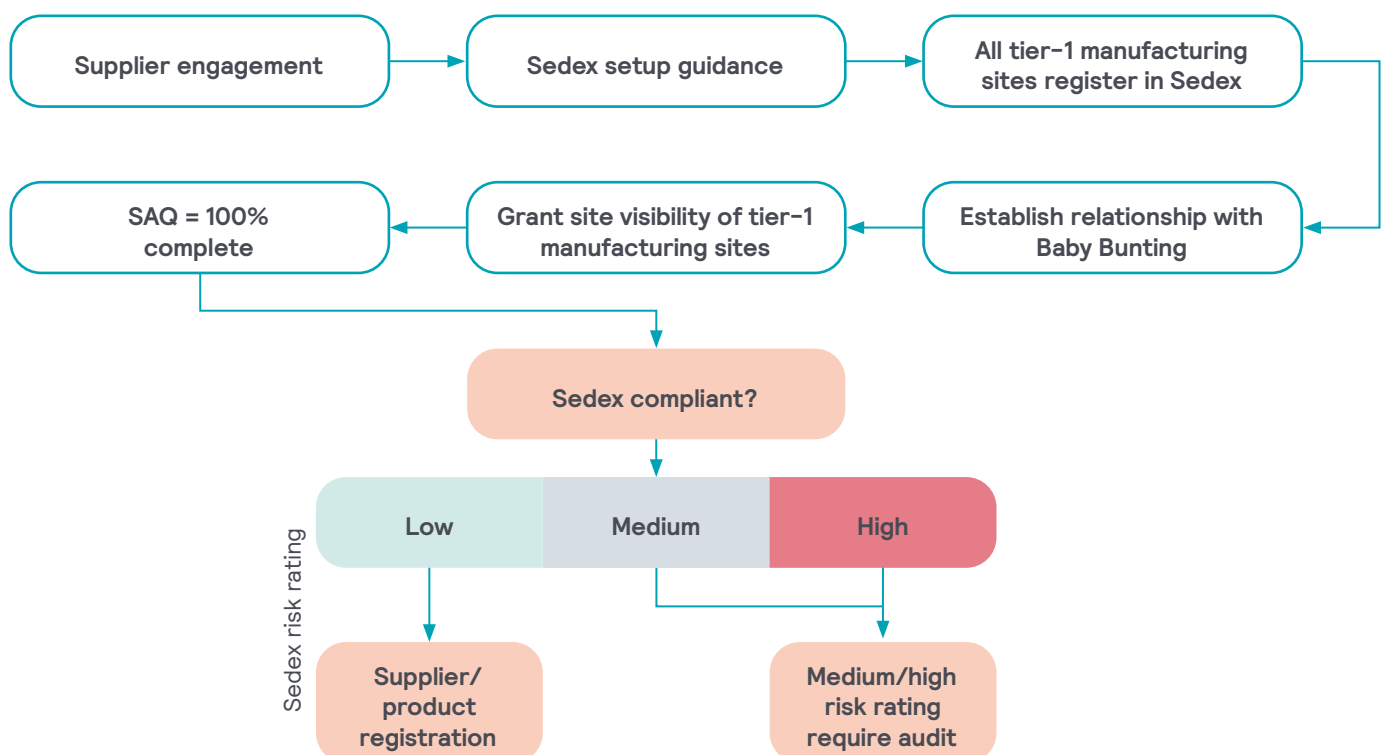

Baby Bunting has partnered with one of the world’s leading ethical trade service providers, Sedex, to enable suppliers and their manufacturing sites to efficiently share information with Baby Bunting to enable risk assessments to be undertaken.

The assessment of modern slavery and ethical sourcing risk can be influenced by factors such as industry and geographic location as well as some product categories. The Ethical Sourcing Procedures are intended to enable Baby Bunting to direct its focus to those suppliers for whom modern slavery and ethical sourcing risks may appear to be more immediate.

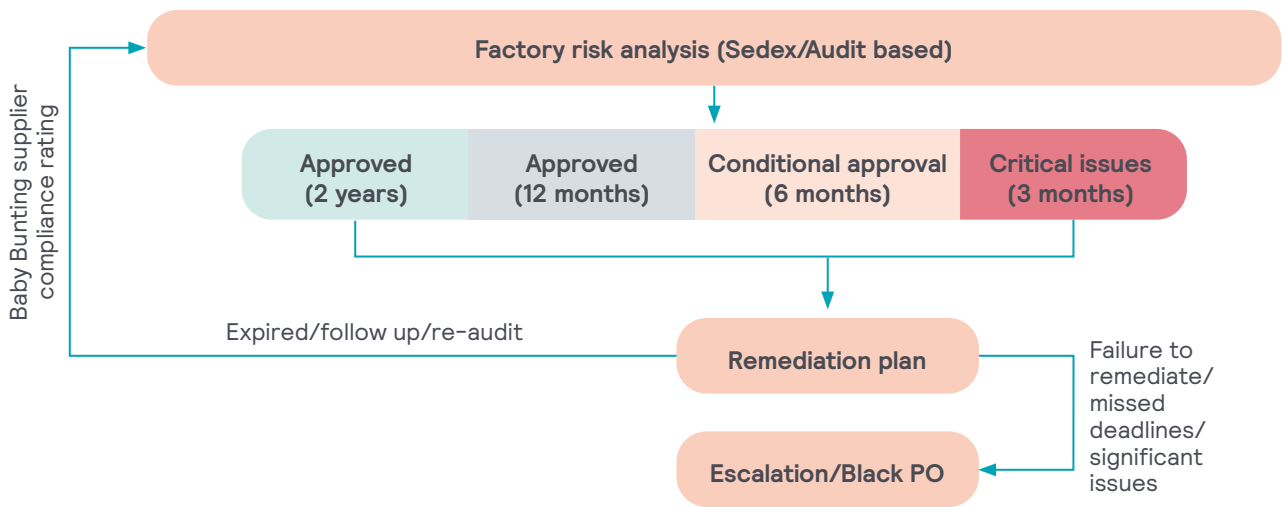

In summary, the procedures involve the following broad steps:

- Information provided by suppliers through a self-assessment questionnaire (SAQ) is combined with industry and country-specific risk factors to arrive at an initial risk rating provided by the Sedex platform.
- The risk rating is assessed by Baby Bunting’s ethical sourcing team and where the risk rating is considered to be elevated further inquiries are undertaken. These inquiries can include the supplier providing an ethical sourcing audit report to provide further information and assurance to Baby Bunting about the supplier and its operations.

1. Supplier onboarding and preliminary risk assessment

2. Supply chain monitoring and continuous improvement

Where required, Baby Bunting’s ethical sourcing team will assess audit reports provided and consider instances of non-compliance identified in those reports. Audit reports are based on internationally recognised programs, including Supplier Ethical Data Exchange (Sedex) SMETA (Sedex Members Ethical Trade Audit) reports. The SMETA audit reports assess suppliers working conditions across four pillars:

- Labour Standards
- Health and Safety
- Business Ethics
- Environment

While most of the suppliers to Baby Bunting are monitored on the Sedex platform, we also accept alternative audit reports such as those pertaining to:

- Business Social Compliance Initiative (BSCI)
- International Council of Toy Industries (ICTI – ethical toy program)
- Worldwide Responsible Accredited Product (WRAP)

Where non-compliance instances are identified, corrective actions may need to be identified and taken. If the number or extent of non-compliance identified is critical, the Ethical Sourcing Procedures specify that Baby Bunting will not trade with that supplier without corrective actions being identified and progress in addressing those issues occurring. Similarly, Baby Bunting may choose to end a supplier relationship where corrective actions have not been undertaken in the time requested.

The Ethical Sourcing Procedures require suppliers to disclose the tier-1 factories being used to manufacture its products.

Baby Bunting recognises the importance of assisting its suppliers and others in the supply chain to continually improve their practices. At times, this can result in better overall outcomes for all relevant stakeholders in the supply chain. Of course, where parties have not achieved significant improvement in respect of identified issues over a period of time, the appropriate response to manage the corresponding modern slavery and ethical sourcing risks may be to cease to deal with that element of the supply chain.

Where a supplier can demonstrate that it has its own system in place to identify and manage modern slavery and ethical sourcing risks, Baby Bunting will accept variations from the process outlined above. Generally, large international brand owners have extensive systems designed to identify and control for modern slavery risks in their supply chains. We seek assurances that the systems are operating appropriately and that risks are being managed.

Contractual arrangements with suppliers

Baby Bunting negotiates contractual arrangements with its suppliers. In respect of modern slavery and ethical sourcing, Baby Bunting seeks to include obligations for suppliers to, among other things, comply with applicable laws (including those relating to labour, worker safety and protection of the environment) along with Baby Bunting's Ethical Sourcing Code.

In addition, agreement is sought with suppliers to ensure that the supplier ensures that any of its subcontractors also comply with Baby Bunting's Ethical Sourcing Code.

Governance arrangements

Baby Bunting's ethical sourcing team work with, but are separate from, Baby Bunting's merchandise team. The ethical sourcing team report to the Group Legal Counsel. Baby Bunting's Board and the Audit and Risk Committee has oversight of Baby Bunting's processes to manage modern slavery risks.

Training

Team members

Baby Bunting provides training to its team members on modern slavery and the risks that it may exist in Baby Bunting's supply chain.

This training is important to build awareness of modern slavery and its broader existence and the risk that it may exist in those supply chains that provide Baby Bunting with goods (including goods for re-sale) and services.

By building awareness among team members of modern slavery, the training aims to emphasise the importance of being committed to identifying and working to eliminate modern slavery in Baby Bunting's supply chains.

Suppliers

Baby Bunting's ethical sourcing team also assists many of its suppliers in understanding Baby Bunting's Ethical Sourcing Procedures and undertaking risk assessments via the Sedex platform.

Whistleblower Protection Policy

Baby Bunting has a Whistleblower Protection Policy which is intended to ensure that concerns regarding unethical or illegal practices, which includes modern slavery concerns, can be reported. For the purposes of the policy, reports can be made via an independently operated whistleblower hotline. Reports can be made anonymously, and Baby Bunting's whistleblowing protection processes are intended to ensure that the anonymity of people making whistleblowing reports is protected as required by applicable whistleblower protection laws. Where issues are investigated and substantiated, Baby Bunting will take appropriate action.

Sustainability Report

In June 2021, Baby Bunting released its first Sustainability Report reviewing its sustainability performance for the financial year ending 27 June 2021. The second Sustainability Report has been released on or about the date of this Modern Slavery Statement.

Baby Bunting is committed to working toward the elimination of risks of modern slavery in its supply chain and operations.

Assessing the effectiveness of Baby Bunting's actions

This section describes how Baby Bunting assesses the effectiveness of the actions being taken to assess and address the risks of modern slavery practices in its operations and its supply chain. We have identified the key modern slavery risks to our supply chain to be forced labour and child labour.

Ethical sourcing procedures – review of tier-1 factories

By the end of FY2022, Baby Bunting had assessed 144 tier-1 factories under Baby Bunting's ethical sourcing procedures, which included reviewing independent audit reports for each of these factories. An additional 48 tier-1 factories were part way through ethical sourcing assessments, at the end of FY2022.

Together these tier-1 factories related to around 80% of Baby Bunting's suppliers for goods for re-sale.

Instances of non-compliance identified

During FY2022, four instances of non-compliance were identified through Baby Bunting's audit program. These consisted of:

- three separate factories in China exceeding the maximum permitted overtime hours for a month;
- a non-compliance due to an outdoor drinking fountain for employees not being covered by a structure.

Each factory has implemented a corrective action plan to address the non-compliance issues. External audits have occurred, or will shortly occur, to confirm that these actions have been undertaken.

During FY2021, no instances of non-compliance were identified. Baby Bunting considers that increasing identification of non-compliance issues through the external audit program is useful as it enables further opportunities to consider and seek to remedy practices that are inconsistent with its ethical sourcing procedures and objectives.

Case study

A factory that supplies products to brands that are sold at Baby Bunting was, following an external audit, found to have overtime hours which exceed local laws.

Upon further investigation, it was found that the factory had been affected by COVID-19 and related lockdowns which had put pressure on the factory's operations. In addition, operations at the factory had been affected by electricity supply issues which had put further pressure on production schedules. Due to these staff shortages and operating challenges, the factory had used excessive overtime to address its production issues.

Following the audit, the factory has shown a willingness to improve its overtime practices. This situation will be closely followed and will continue to be monitored to ensure that working conditions improve and excessive overtime is eliminated. The corrective actions identified have included strengthening of management of overtime hours, reduction of overtime hours offered, adjusting production schedules and expanding the recruitment of new staff.

Tier-2 factories and suppliers

During FY2022, Baby Bunting commenced a process of seeking to understand the ethical sourcing practices of suppliers to certain tier-1 factories (ie tier-2 suppliers). Tier-2 suppliers may provide raw materials or finished components that are then used by tier-1 factories to produce goods that are then ultimately supplied to Baby Bunting for re-sale.

At the end of FY2022, this process is at its initial stages and work has started with a few major suppliers of key products in the baby goods industry. We expect to have greater visibility into the ethical sourcing practices of the tier-2 suppliers over the course of FY2023.

Governance

Baby Bunting's Board receives information at each of its scheduled meetings on instances of critical non-compliance identified through the ethical sourcing audit program and information on factory approval status.

Future developments

To ensure that the effectiveness of Baby Bunting's actions in relation to the minimisation of modern slavery risks in its operations and supply chains continues to improve, the following initiatives are planned for the period ahead:

- completion of all outstanding ethical sourcing risk assessments and, where appropriate, external audits for all tier-1 factories;
- further examination of certain tier-2 factories and suppliers;
- risk assessments and, where appropriate, other assurance processes in relation to suppliers of goods (in addition to goods for re-sale) and services for our Australia and New Zealand operations.
- expanding the internal processes to further oversee and embed modern slavery processes in our business, drawing representatives from different business units of Baby Bunting

Baby Bunting's group entities

Baby Bunting NZ Limited is an entity that has been established to conduct Baby Bunting's operations in New Zealand. It is wholly owned by Baby Bunting Group Limited.

As described on page 7 above, Baby Bunting's merchandise and product compliance teams support Baby Bunting's operations in New Zealand, in addition to the existing operations in Australia. This ensures Baby Bunting's ethical sourcing procedures can be applied to suppliers of goods for re-sale in both Australia and New Zealand.

Conclusion

Baby Bunting acknowledges the importance of seeking to ensure that modern slavery is eliminated from our supply chains, and we understand the role we can play in achieving that. We are committed to the ongoing delivery of our initiatives and working with our stakeholders to contribute to the elimination of modern slavery.
