Safety

The sustained downward trend in TRIFR reflects a maturing safety approach across New Hope operations, driven by continuous learning, targeted injury prevention and collaborative governance.

FY25 incidents and injuries consist of:

- Recordable injuries were primarily hand and shoulder-related, typically resulting from lower-energy exposures such as tool use and manual handling.
- These injuries were managed through timely intervention and supported recovery, resulting in positive return-to-work outcomes across operations.

Key actions taken to improve performance:

- Continuous collaborative learning, working together to understand incidents, refine controls and extract learnings for improvement across the Group.
- Enhanced investigation rigour, driving deeper understanding of root causes and prevention strategies.
- Increased frontline hazard identification informing risk prevention.
- Balancing corporate technical leadership and governance with site operational autonomy and local solution development.
