Healius wins contract for supply of services to Australian Defence Force

Healius Limited (Healius) (ASX: HLS) today announces that it has signed a contract with the Australian Department of Defence to provide private pathology services to the Australian Defence Force (ADF).

Under the contract, Healius, through its national pathology network, will provide a full range of outpatient pathology services to ADF personnel.

Healius will also provide dedicated pathology collection staff operating within ADF Health Centres across Australia, and a suite of modern digital solutions covering the entire pathology journey, including e-referrals, online bookings, collection management and a Doctors' results portal.

Healius Chief Executive Officer, Paul Anderson, said: "We are honoured to have been awarded this important contract with the Department of Defence, which will support the health needs of all ADF personnel. The Department of Defence were impressed with our extensive modern digital solutions, which are designed to improve services for patients and doctors. We are delighted to be able to leverage these solutions for the benefit of the ADF."

Mr Anderson continued, "In addition to dedicated collection staff on-site at ADF Health Centres, our national footprint of laboratories and collection centres will provide the ADF with greater pathology access across the country, including the largest pathology collection centre network across regional, rural and Indigenous communities. We look forward to working collaboratively with the Department of Defence to deliver timely, consistent, quality pathology services to their personnel."

The contract commences on 1 December 2025 for an initial five-year period with extensions for up to a further five years at the option of the Australian Defence Force. Total revenue over the initial period of the contract is expected to be approximately $60m.
