Atturra signs education SaaS platform deal with Haileybury

Atturra Limited (ASX: ATA, Company), a leading technology services business in designing, implementing and maintaining IT solutions, today announces that it has entered into a contract with Haileybury, one of Australia's largest independent schools, to deploy its Scholarion™ education SaaS platform.

The contract has an initial term of 5 years and Atturra expects that the platform implementation will begin in March 2026.

The Company considers the agreement to be strategically significant due to Haileybury's significant brand, scale and complexity. Atturra expects that the implementation will serve as a reference point for future education sector opportunities, showcasing a fully integrated, enterprise-grade digital operating environment that supports both educational outcomes and robust operational governance. The contract is not material to Atturra's FY26 guidance.

Haileybury operates many physical and online campuses across Australia and China, with total enrolments of over 4,800 students. Along with a number of other leading schools Haileybury has contributed to the co-design of Scholarion™, which ensures the relevance and suitability of the product.

Under the agreement, Haileybury will deploy Scholarion™ as an integrated student information system (SIS) and enterprise platform. Built on Microsoft Dynamics 365, Scholarion™ is a cloud-native platform replacing fragmented legacy systems with a single, secure solution that unifies student lifecycle management, finance, HR, compliance, communications, and advanced analytics. Scholarion™ enables schools to operate with the insight, scalability, and resilience of a modern organisation.

The agreement with Haileybury builds on earlier Scholarion™ adoptions at leading schools, Brisbane Grammar, Toowoomba Grammar, Trinity Grammar (Kew), Newington College and Brighton Grammar.

Atturra CEO, Stephen Kowal said: "Haileybury's adoption of Scholarion™ reinforces the platform's maturity, scalability and relevance across large, complex school environments."

This momentum reflects Atturra's strategy to deliver secure, enterprise-ready digital platforms that create long-term value for the education sector."
