Judo appoints David Stephen as Non-Executive Director

The Chair of Judo Capital Holdings Limited (ASX:JDO), David Hornery, today announced the appointment of David Stephen to Judo's Board as an Independent Non-Executive Director with effect from 24 March 2026.

David Stephen is a highly experienced banking and financial services executive with more than 35 years' industry experience and deep expertise in risk management and compliance. David has held the positions of Group Chief Risk Officer at Westpac Banking Corporation, Royal Bank of Scotland, and Australian and New Zealand Banking Group. Across his executive career, David has established a strong track record in strategy and leadership, driving risk transformation and guiding organisations through complex, highly regulated environments.

David holds a Bachelor of Business (Banking and Finance) from Monash University. He is currently a Non-Executive Director at Acenda and a Senior Advisor at Bain & Co.

David Hornery said: "On behalf of the Board, I am delighted to welcome David to Judo. David's extensive banking experience along with his expertise in risk and compliance will add significant strength to the Judo Board."
